Chapter I.

The Story of the Battalion.

THE Great War began early in August, 1914. Besides the 3rd (Special Reserve) Battalion there were no less than four territorial battalions of the Gordon Highlanders in Aberdeenshire at the outbreak of the War, namely, the 4th, 5th, 6th, and 7th Battalions. The large demand for recruits made by these battalions on the county was so great that Lord Kitchener was doubtful from the outset whether any Gordon Battalions raised for his New Armies would succeed in maintaining their strength by subsequent drafts. He decided, however, to raise as many battalions as possible; time would show whether they could be maintained. During the ensuing weeks was raised the greatest volunteer army the world has ever seen. The 8th, 9th, and 10th Service Battalions of the Gordon Highlanders were raised during August and September.

On November 27th, 1914, Lieut.-Col. H. Alford received a wire from the War Office asking him if he would be willing to take command of the 11th (Service) Battalion Gordon Highlanders, which was about to be formed, taking with him as a nucleus some officers and men from the 3rd Battalion Gordon Highlanders. He replied in the affirmative, asking at the same time for an interview with Lord Kitchener, and the next day, November 28th, 1914, the 11th Battalion came into existence. The establishment was fixed at 1150 all ranks, but it was some months before this figure was reached. Owing to the shortage of men in the 3rd Battalion, the latter were only able to transfer 252 men to the 11th Battalion on November 28th, 1914, and nearly all these had to be re-transferred to the 3rd Battalion a few weeks later. It was to the Depot and to the Depot only that we looked for recruits, but the Depot were not allowed to send a single recruit to the 11th Battalion as long as the 3rd Battalion were in need of any. The 11th Battalion was allotted the hutments just completed adjoining King Street Barracks, Aberdeen. The County Hotel in King Street was rented by the officers as an officers' mess and officers' quarters. The sergeants' mess was established in the Athenæum Restaurant. Units were being raised quicker than they could be armed, clothed, and equipped. We did not need the repeated assurance of cabinet ministers that Britain was not prepared for war. We were in a position to know that she was not. The only uniform that could at first be provided was the blue "emergency clothing," an ugly dress which had been made in apparently inexhaustible quantities somewhere about 1893. After the first month a limited quantity of khaki began to arrive, also a few D.P. rifles, i.e., rifles fit for drill purposes only. Kilts were first issued to us at the end of February, 1915. There were about a dozen service rifles in the battalion when we were first formed, with which recruits were put through their musketry course. It was some six months later before the battalion received any considerable number of service rifles or any transport. One thing the men never lacked, that was good meals; the commissariat was always excellent.

Instructors were few and far between. Any one who knew anything about drill was put on to drill a squad. B.S.M. Ritchie, assisted by Coy. Sgt.-Majors Burns, Wood, Hobson, and Hanna, all "old Gordons," took up the task of turning raw recruits into soldiers, and so successful were they that some of these very recruits became, within the next six months, amongst the best drill instructors of the New Army.

2nd Lieut. A. L. H. Ferguson (afterwards killed) was appointed acting Adjutant, and Hon. Lieut. F. W. Clarke was appointed Quartermaster. The appointment of second-in-command was vacant until July 1st, 1915, when it was given to Major R. W. Purvis, the senior of the company commanders. T. Priest, an "old Gordon" was Battalion Quartermaster-Sergeant. Sgt. G. Kennedy, also an ex-regular of the Gordons, was our first Orderly-room Sergeant; he was promoted, October, 1915, to be company quartermaster-sergeant. Sgt. Master-Tailor C. Clark, of the 2nd Battalion, was appointed Master-Tailor. Sgt. H. Mackenzie, an ex-regular, joined about this time, having travelled from Saskatchewan, Canada, to serve with his old regiment. He was made a Company Sgt.-Major not long afterwards.

On December 31st, 1914, the Aberdeen garrison paraded in Duthie Park, Aberdeen. The troops, all Gordon Highlanders, consisted of the 3rd Battalion, under Lieut.-Col. A. H. Leith; 11th Battalion, under Lieut.-Col. H. Alford; the Depot, under Lieut.-Col. H. A. Bethune; and the 2/4th Battalion (T.F.), under Lieut.-Col. J. E. Macqueen (killed later). The strength of the 11th Battalion on this occasion was only 14 officers and 350 other ranks.

About the end of the year steps were taken to start a pipe band, and over £50 was collected. The pipe tunes of the 11th Battalion were as follows:—

Battalion Marches, - - -	- { "The Pipers' Farewell to Gibraltar."
	- { "The Bugle Horn."
Reveille, - - - - -	- "Hey, Johnny Cope."
Dress for Parade (half-hour warning), -	- "Nuthrown Maid."
The Gathering (Battalion fall in), -	- "My Native Highland Home."
The Assembly (Officers fall in), -	- "Dornoch Links."
Meals (1st pipes or cookhouse), -	- "Bundle and go."
Meals (2nd pipes), - - -	- "Blithe, blithe and merry was she."
Lights out, - - - - -	- "Soldier, lie down."

On January 20th the 11th Battalion gave a concert in the Y.M.C.A. Buildings, Aberdeen. The large Institute hall was crowded in every part. Bailie Shaw presided, and a collection was taken on behalf of the local Y.M.C.A.

During the early months of the war "Tipperary" was the favourite tune; every draft sang it as they marched away, and everybody else sang it or whistled it on every possible occasion. By the end of the year people seemed to have tired of it, and it was succeeded in popular favour by others, such as "Sing me a Song of Bonnie Scotland," "Till the Boys come Home," "The Long, Long Trail," "Pack up your Troubles in your old Kit-bag," "When you come home," and "The Bing Boys." There were four singers at our concerts who were in great request—namely, 2nd Lieut. W. M'Intyre ("The Mountains of Mourne"), Sgt. G. Gamlin ("The Village Pump"), Sgt. J. C. Grieve ("Good-bye, Virginia"), and Pte. H. Smith ("Jean from Aberdeen").

On February 9th Pipe-Major A. Ross Gray joined us, and took over charge of our pipe band.

On February 12th, 1915, Lieut. J. Wise was appointed acting Adjutant vice Lieut. A. L. H. Ferguson, who became Musketry Officer. Lieut. Wise continued as acting Adjutant until June, 1915.

On February 21st the battalion moved from King Street Hutments to the Children's Hospital in Aberdeen, the officers' mess and quarters continuing at the County Hotel.

On March 10th Major Makgill-Crichton joined on transfer from the 6th Battalion Cameron Highlanders.

On May 17th the battalion moved by special train from Aberdeen to Nigg. The strength at this time was 50 officers and 205 other ranks, a considerable number of men having been transferred to the 3rd Battalion, who found continued difficulty in maintaining their strength. The 11th Battalion now ceased to be a service battalion and became a reserve battalion. At Nigg the battalion became part of a Reserve Infantry Brigade. The special task of the 11th Battalion Gordon Highlanders was to provide drafts for the New Army battalions of the Gordon Highlanders at the Front.

On May 20th Major-General Hunter-Blair inspected us.

On the 24th the Battalion moved by special train from Nigg to Dornoch, where they were quartered in hired buildings, notably the County Buildings, the old Parish School, and the Free Church Hall. The officers were in billets, the officers' mess was in "The Cottage," opposite the County Buildings, and the sergeants' mess was in the Carnegie Library. Some weeks later, when the summer season was coming to an end, the Station Hotel was also appropriated for accommodation. We continued to form part of the Brigade, the remainder of the Brigade being at Tain. The battalion found Dornoch an agreeable place to be quartered in, the people being so hospitable. The Duke of Sutherland (Dunrobin) gave the officers as much shooting as they could find time for, and the Duchess took an active interest in the Military Hospital—our hospital, for it was entirely an 11th Battalion one. Dr. M'Lachlan was in medical charge of us. Others who took much interest in the battalion included Sheriff and Mrs. Campbell, Rev. and Mrs. Bentinck, Mr. and Mrs. Hardie (Clashmore), Mr. and Mrs. Arthur, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor (The Grange), Mr. and Mrs. Platt (Dornoch Castle), and Mr. M'Kay (Town Clerk). Mr. Hardie was the factor of Andrew Carnegie, the American millionaire, whose fine place, "Skibo," is four miles south of Dornoch.

On June 16th, 1915, Lieut. J. W. Taylor (Captain Feb. 1916) succeeded Capt. J. Wise as Adjutant.

On June 20th Lieut.-Gen. Sir Spencer Ewart, G.O.C. in C., Scottish Command, inspected the battalion.

During the first fortnight of July the mounted officers of the battalion received their riding horses for the first time.

On July 15th and 16th a number of officers of the 9th and 10th

Battalions joined for duty. The 9th and 10th Battalions had recently proceeded overseas, and these officers being supernumerary, were ordered to remain with the 11th Battalion until their services were required at the Front. Those of the 9th Battalion were :

Lieut. G. Cowper, 2nd Lieut. A. E. O. Black, 2nd Lieut. W. Balleny, 2nd Lieut. M. Wright, 2nd Lieut. W. N. Allan, 2nd Lieut. R. Reid (killed later), 2nd Lieut. F. V. Macdonald, 2nd Lieut. R. F. Simpson, 2nd Lieut. J. D. Robertson, and 2nd Lieut. E. F. Harvie.

Those of the 10th Battalion were :

2nd Lieut. A. N. Bain, 2nd Lieut. A. F. Sprott, 2nd Lieut. G. S. M. Milne, 2nd Lieut. R. E. C. Gordon, 2nd Lieut. A. Duthie, 2nd Lieut. W. B. Campbell, 2nd Lieut. D. Farquhar-Thomson (killed later), 2nd Lieut. C. V. Robertson, 2nd Lieut. P. W. Scott, and 2nd Lieut. J. E. Law.

On July 16th a wire was received from the War Office ordering Lieut. G. C. Holland to proceed overseas. This was the first time any subaltern of the 11th had been called for to go to the Front, and it put new heart into the other subalterns who were beginning to weary of waiting.

During July a Young Officers' Company, or school of instruction, commonly called the Y.O.C., was started at Tain (Brigade Headquarters) under Lieut.-Col. L. Staunton, an "old Gordon." This class was very necessary, as every reserve battalion had more subalterns than they could properly train. From now on the 11th Battalion Gordon Highlanders had seldom less than 100 subalterns on its roll, most of whom were at the Y.O.C. There were three other Y.O.C.'s in Scotland, namely at Hawick, Nigg, and Edinburgh.

On July 26th, by way of a start, 24 subalterns were sent to the Y.O.C. from the 11th Battalion.

On August 3rd the first draft left for the Front. For names of all drafts see Appendix. Photographs of some of the drafts are reproduced in this book.

Although the 11th Battalion had been in existence eight months, it is not to be inferred that this its first draft took eight months to train; the battalion had up to June barely exceeded the 200 minimum, which 200, composed of training staff, batmen, clerks, cooks, &c., is the minimum "framework" required for every battalion before it can start training any drafts at all. Young officers were always plentiful; those not required with the battalion were sent to the Y.O.C. as already explained. From now on it took about twelve weeks to get a man trained and ready in every respect for a draft. As soon as a man joined he was posted to No. III. Training Company, he received dental treatment if he required it, was vaccinated and inoculated. This was done at intervals of a few days during the first fortnight; meanwhile he was learning recruits' drill. About the ninth week he was generally ready to start the preliminary musketry, which means he was in one of the squads taken daily by the musketry officer to the miniature range. The following week he became one of the musketry party, and "fired the course," which took a fortnight. On return from the course he was seen at drill by the C.O., and if passed he was promoted the same day to No. II. Training Company. The next four or five days were devoted entirely to bombing, under the bombing officer; some instruction in bombing had been given to the recruit during the preceding weeks. On completion of this short bombing course, the recruit was deemed entitled to his "overseas furlough," which meant he could go home for four days to say good-bye before going to the Front. On return from his furlough, he was instructed (in II. Tr. Coy.) in trench digging, barbed wire entanglements, night work, &c. Some were now taken for training as specialists—e.g., cooks, signallers, transport. When considered sufficiently trained he was promoted to No. I. Training Company, which had the task of final preparation for drafts. He was instructed in the use of field dressings, anti-gas helmets, &c., and received further training in bayonet fighting, wire entanglements, rapid loading, rapid firing, &c. Finally he would be detailed for a draft. When detailed for a draft, a man handed in his glengarry and received instead a balmoral cap; he also received a khaki apron, field dressing, and a new pair of boots. As the boots were to be a fortnight in wear before being taken overseas, it followed that a man had to be detailed for a draft a fortnight ahead.

About this time an order was issued from the War Office that the khaki jackets of the N.C.O.'s and men were not to be rounded off in future ; the idea being that the square-cut corner was more convenient for sewing on the field dressing and for holding the gas-helmet.

(We have described the system of training in vogue in our Reserve Infantry Brigade, as it was when most fully developed. It was always being improved, and was subject to frequent necessary changes. The organisation of Training Companies running concurrently with Pay Companies did not come fully into operation until March, 1916. The system worked very well, and, as long as the supply of recruits was maintained, gave us a perfect draft-producing machine.)

Every man proceeding in a draft to the Front was reminded of Lord Kitchener's message, which was as follows :—

You are ordered abroad as a soldier of the King to help our French comrades against the invasion of a common enemy. You have to perform a task which will need your courage, your energy, your patience. Remember that the honour of the British Army depends upon your individual conduct. It will be your duty not only to set an example of discipline and perfect steadiness under fire, but also to maintain the most friendly relations with those you are helping in this struggle. The operations in which you are engaged, will, for the most part, take place on a friendly country, and you can do your own country no better service than in showing yourself, in France and Belgium, in the true characrer of a British soldier.

Be invariably courteous, considerate, and kind. Never do anything likely to injure or destroy property, and always look upon looting as a disgraceful act. You are sure to meet with a welcome and to be trusted ; and your conduct must justify that welcome and that trust. Your duty cannot be done unless your health is sound. So keep constantly on your guard against any excesses. In this new experience you may find temptations both in wine and women. You must entirely resist both temptations, and while treating all women with perfect courtesy you should avoid any intimacy. Do your duty bravely. Fear God. Honour the King.

KITCHENER, Field Marshal.

Lord Kitchener's first and only message to his soldiers made a lasting impression on them.

Pte. Robert Michie, who went in one of our drafts, wrote an interesting account of his impressions, which we reproduce elsewhere.

The battalion was now (August, 1915) increasing in strength, and the training was becoming more specialised. The battalion specialist officers were :—

Bombing,	-	-	2nd Lieut. R. Giles.
Machine Gun,	-	-	„ W. Smith.
Musketry,	-	-	„ D. E. Burnett.
Physical Training,	-	-	„ W. A. Crichton.
Range-finding,	-	-	„ G. D. Pape.
Signallers,	-	-	„ D. Buchan.
Transport,	-	-	Lieut. E. Cowan.

There was also a large class of cooks being trained by the master cook. Every recruit had to qualify in bombing, musketry, and physical training. The range-finding class was a very limited affair, a few subalterns and non-commissioned officers being selected for it from time to time, and it only took a few days. The men taken for cooks, signallers, and transport were kept under training for three or four months, and in this comparatively short time some first-rate men were turned out. The rapid and efficient training of the specialists of the New Army has been one of the remarkable features of the Great War.

Another feature of the Great War has been the way in which men from all parts of the world have rallied round the old flag. The following list, all 11th Battalion officers, speaks for itself:—

From Argentine,	-	-	2nd Lieuts. C. E. Gerard and D. S. Inglis.
„ Australia,	-	-	Lieut. A. M. Drummond.
„ Barbadoes,	-	-	2nd Lieuts. E. L. Armstrong, A. W. Boyce, and H. S. Reece.
„ Bermuda,	-	-	2nd Lieut. W. S. Smith.
„ British East Africa,			Capt. B. A. K. M'Roberts.
„ British Guiana,	-	-	2nd Lieut. T. C. Stuart.
„ Burma,	-	-	2nd Lieut. W. A. Johnson.
„ Canada,	-	-	Capt. J. Wise, Lieut. G. C. Holland, 2nd Lieuts. R. J. Giles, F. D. Macfie, R. M. Maclean, J. H. Muir, W. S. Smith; also Capt. J. E. Adamson, D.S.O., who was sometime attached to us for duty from 8th Battalion.
„ Ceylon,	-	-	Lieut. D. E. Burnett, 2nd Lieuts. L. A. Colbert, Jas. Collier, and B. R. Woodward.
„ China (Shanghai),	-	-	2nd Lieuts. J. E. Law and A. Mitchell.

„ Seychelles,	-	-	Lieut. D. W. M'Leod.
„ South Africa,	-	-	2nd Lieuts. J. B. Anderson, A. T. Duncan, J. M. Gordon, G. Hotchkis (Rhodesia), G. L. C. Key, C. B. Macfarlane, and Lieut. D. Macfarlane.

August 4th was the first anniversary of the War. In Dornoch, as in other parts throughout the kingdom, it was celebrated by a crowded meeting of military and civilians convened to record their resolution that the War be carried to a satisfactory end. The people of Dornoch assembled in the Town Hall. The resolution was moved by the Duke of Sutherland, and seconded by Lieut.-Col. H. Alford, both of whom made speeches which were received with enthusiasm.

On September 9th the battalion gave a military concert in the grounds of the Station Hotel, and another on September 16th.

The great battle of Loos took place on September 25th, and news was received later of the death of Major Makgill-Crichton, who had left the battalion seven weeks previously ; also of George Alfred Mackenzie, who started as a sergeant in this battalion, and afterwards became 2nd lieutenant in the 8th Battalion.

During September B.Q.M.S. T. Priest was made a Quartermaster in the territorials, and C.Q.M.S. R. Jones succeeded him as our B.Q.M.S.

In October our brigade moved to Richmond, Yorkshire, the 11th Gordons moving by two special trains on October 19th. The camps at Richmond were only recently completed—they extended for miles in every direction, and each camp was a vast sea of mud. All who could not go to the Front wished themselves back in Scotland.

At Christmas and New Year all ranks were granted leave, the length of leave being such that each man had four clear days at home. Only a certain proportion of the battalion were allowed to be away at one time. N.C.O.'s and men with three months' service were granted free rail warrants for this purpose, at Government expense, but this privilege was not extended to officers.

On December 31st the battalion gave a concert in the regimental institute, C.S.M. Wood in the chair.

On January 18th the battalion moved from Scotton Camp to Hipswell Camp.

On February 15th an assistant B.S.M. having been authorised, acting Sergeant-Drummer George Lawrence, an "old Gordon," was selected to assist B.S.M. Ritchie.

On April 3rd the battalion moved from Richmond to Stirling, being quartered in hired buildings in Cambusbarron. A detachment, under Major R. W. Purvis, proceeded the same day to Milnathort.

On May 22nd, 1916, Sgt. Piper Findlater, V.C., joined, having been invalided from 9th Battalion. He was a welcome addition to our pipe band.

On June 5th Lord Kitchener died, being drowned off the Orkneys whilst on his way to Russia. We, the Highland Reserve Brigade of "Kitchener's Army," sincerely mourned his loss.

On July 1st the battalion moved to Bridge of Allan, being quartered in the hutments there. The Cambusbarron companies marched to Bridge of Allan via Causewayhead Station, where they met the Milnathort detachment detraining, and the whole battalion was united for the first time since April.

On July 22nd our Brigade paraded for inspection by Lord French, Commander-in-Chief of the Home Forces.

On July 26th B.Q.M.S. Jones was appointed Quartermaster and Hon. Lieut., vice F. W. Clarke who proceeded overseas as Quartermaster to the 1st Battalion.

During July the British and French Armies on the Western Front commenced their great "push." Recruits under the new Military Service Act now came in in greater numbers. and drafts were called for more frequently.

Chapter II.

With a Draft to France.

NOVEMBER 2nd, 1915.

THE morning of Tuesday, 2nd November, 1915, happily for the spirits of the party about to proceed to France, broke pleasantly. The scene at camp on that morning when our draft paraded in over-seas kit, lacked the picturesqueness of similar parades at Dornoch, but enthusiasm was not wanting, and hearty cheering was given the lads as they left camp, headed by the battalion pipe band. We had a march of four miles to the station. The piping made things cheery on the march, but it was evident that the lads wanted to give vent to their surplus enthusiasm, and the pipe-tune had no sooner stopped than the strains of various favourite ditties sounded out with gusto. There were no cheering crowds en route, but if a servant girl waved her hands from a farm steading close by she was immediately met with the greeting, "Ta-ta, Bella." It took us quite an hour to get to the station, and when we got there we found the A. & S.H. draft already on the platform. Our train arrived punctually at 10-20, and the Argyll officer and I got our men into the carriages (six in a carriage) with all speed. We got a good send-off from a crowd of no mean dimensions, the Argyll band and our own playing as the train left the platform, "Happy have we been th'gither." At 4-15 p.m. we detrained at King's Cross Station.

An interesting part of the journey now awaited us ; we had to march our men across London to London Bridge Station. Our route lay along Gray's Inn Road, High Holborn, Cheapside, past the Bank of England, and thence to London Bridge Station. The men were highly delighted at the prospect of marching through the streets of London. All along the route there were crowds of interested spectators, who cheered the "Scotties" as they marched past. At London Bridge Station, tea and buns were kindly provided by some ladies, including Lady Limerick, Lady Newburgh, and Lady Warrender. I thought very highly of the devoted, unselfish work carried on by these ladies.

After the men had been provided with tea there was a wait of over an hour before the train for Folkestone was due. A number of other drafts now arrived on the platform, and we all entrained in the 7-30 troop-train to Folkestone. Folkestone Harbour was reached at 10-30 p.m.; the detraining did not take long, and our embarkation was also quickly carried out. Before going on board I handed the embarkation officer a form showing the number of men in my party. Before leaving Folkestone written orders were issued to all the D.C.O.'s (draft conducting officers), chiefly about sending out a marker and guide on arrival, and about handing a nominal roll to the M.L.O. (military landing officer) at Boulogne.

There were eight or nine drafts from various regiments on board. Besides Highlanders there were the King's Royal Rifles, the Norfolks, and the Essex Regiment. At 11 o'clock we steamed out of Folkestone Harbour. The various drafts kept together on different parts of the deck; the rules about smoking and making a noise on the boat are very strict. It is quite probable that we were escorted on our way across the Channel by a destroyer, but in the darkness I could see no trace of any boat ahead of us. After steaming slowly into Boulogne Harbour, we found that there was no berth for us at the quayside, and our ship was moored alongside another cross-channel steamer. From the quayside came the stentorian-toned command of the Military Landing Officer that Conducting Officers were wanted. In response, we all went ashore, and having given the Landing Officer a return of the men in our respective parties, we detailed two men from our drafts to act as marker and guide, and sent them on to an open space some distance up the quay. The landing of the men was a slow business. Quite an hour elapsed before all the units were ready to march off from the improvised parade ground, and it was 2 a.m. when we found ourselves marching away to our resting place for the remainder of the morning. Boulogne was a city of darkness. Apart from a few French soldiers on sentry duty at various places, not a soul was to be seen on the streets. Our route lay to the north-west of the city, and after a three-mile march we arrived at the Rest Camp. Here we were awaited by the Camp Commandant (a colonel)—hard luck on him having to wait up till 3 o'clock in the morning! Cold as the weather was, all were under canvas. Tents were ready for the new party, and no time was lost in allotting tents to the various units. The tents were of the large service pattern, and about a dozen were packed into one tent; the men were given only one blanket each. When the men were all safely housed I went to the Camp Orderly-room to get orders for the next day, and then to the officers' lines where I found an empty tent. There were no beds about, only the wooden floors, but there were sufficient blankets.

On the recommendation of the Camp Commandant I got breakfast next morning at a refreshment hut run by the Salvation Army. The establishment was under the management of an English Salvation Army Captain and his wife, assisted by a French maid. We found that they could not give us the usual bacon-and-egg breakfast, and tinned sausages was the best they could do. There wasn't much doing in the forenoon. We Conducting Officers were told at the Camp Orderly-room that we would not likely be away before afternoon, so we had to make arrangements for the men's dinners. As there was a regulation that no one could leave camp, we were interned, so to speak, until the time of leaving. The forenoon was quite bright, and it was very pleasant moving about our portion of the camp. In our wanderings to and fro, we met groups of little French boys and girls, and they all seemed very anxious to chum up with the soldiers. They were very intelligent children, and knew a few English words. At 12 o'clock the men had dinner, and shortly after that hour the Conducting Officers, en masse, went over to the Salvation Army Hut to see if any food was to be had. In anticipation of our visit the worthy captain and his wife had a good meal ready for us. I need hardly add that there were no intoxicants to be had in this establishment.

At 2.30 p.m. all the drafts formed up and proceeded to march down the steep hill to Boulogne. The Gordon Highlanders were much the smartest draft from the Highland regiments. In our march we passed a good part of the city, and got an enthusiastic welcome from the French women and children. I must say there were very few men to be seen. A pathetic thing was that many of the women were dressed in black. In about an hour's time we arrived at the harbour. We expected to entrain at a railway station, but instead of that we had to wander along to a siding at the extreme end of the harbour, crossing and recrossing the rails, and generally looking out for stray trucks that might run us down at any minute. When we had all entrained, and that took a long time, we thought we would be off for the Base at once, but there was a wait of about two hours before the train left Boulogne. Even after leaving the town our progress was slow. There were two large Nord engines, but the load included heavy freight waggons as well as passenger carriages, and we simply crawled along. Darkness came on just as we were leaving Boulogne, so we could see nothing of the country on either side of the railway line. After a journey of two hours we arrived at our destination. There was a great stir at the station, as guides for the various drafts were shouting out for their respective parties. Our guide was a sergeant from the Gordons, who advised me to get the men up to the camp as quickly as possible to save any waiting at the Q.M. Stores where the men would be issued with rifles, &c. Without losing any time I got my men up to the Q.M. Stores of the division to which the men were to be attached. Here the men filed through a large hut, and were issued with rifles, bayonets, pull-throughs, and oil bottles. I signed for these articles, and then led my men down to the Divisional Depot at the Base where we met the Adjutant, who asked various questions of the party, how many had been out before, how many were specialists, and so on, This done, he led me to the orderly-room, where I handed over my papers, conduct sheets, and nominal rolls. With the handing over of the papers my duties as D.C.O. came to an end. Our men behaved splendidly throughout.

With a Draft to the Front.

It is just one month to-day since I arrived in France. Coming out here with a draft is not nearly so inspiring as when a whole battalion takes the road, but it is certainly not an uninteresting experience. I fancy the people at home who hear of their laddies going to the front with a draft have a very vague idea of what that means. There are battalions kept and trained in Britain solely for the purpose of replenishing other battalions at the Front whose ranks are continually being depleted by the wastage of war. Reserves coming out in drafts take the place of those rendered hors de combat, or, sadder still, who make the supreme sacrifice. Come what may, the battalion in the trenches aims at a certain numerical strength. In the case of our draft, we were lying at a large training centre in the North of England, where we had been drilling for some months. On the Friday afternoon we got word to appear at the orderly-room after parade, and at once guessed the reason why—an overseas draft was about to be picked! The burning question now was "Who'll be taken, and who'll be left?" After our prolonged training we were naturally enthusiastic on the job, and consequently did what our N.C.O.'s would say was a very rare occurrence by turning out well before the appointed time. Then we filed past the less fortunate ones who were not parading on this auspicious occasion, and who, "not so blest as we," looked just a little envious.

Lined up in front of the officers' quarters we awaited the arrival of the Colonel. At his heels followed the indispensable "train attendant"—Adjutant, Captain, Sergeant-Major, &c. The Adjutant, the "Who's Who" of every battalion, answered the Colonel's multifarious questions regarding the men in a satisfactory manner. Soon the eliminating process was at an end; the personnel of the prospective draft was determined upon, and the others dismissed. Only one signaller was wanted, and to my unbounded joy I was chosen, and I returned to my hut veritably shaking hands with myself. The rejected ones could be heard muttering bitterly, "It's ma usual rotten luck," or else they found solace in the wet canteen.

On Saturday evening the battalion orders announced that the men chosen for the draft would "hold themselves in readiness to proceed overseas at an early date," and were accordingly struck off duty. None of us raised any objection to this mandate, especially the "struck off duty" clause. Next day was Sunday, the day of rest, and rest in the army curriculum is frequently spelt f-a-t-i-g-u-e. In the forenoon the draft was fitted out with their overseas clothing and inspected by the Colonel. In like manner the General feasted his eyes on us on Monday. We now had plenty time for packing our kits (and let me whisper, a goodly supply of "Keating's powder" with it), and we also wrote home. These letters usually run in this trend:—"Dear Mother,—I am going to the Front to-morrow. Don't worry about me, as I have a presentiment that I'll be home all safe and sound in no time," &c., &c. Presentiments and quasi-presentiments are rife in the army, especially when a delinquent "Tommy" is awaiting C.O.'s trial for some misdemeanour.

On Tuesday afternoon we have our last meal in this camp, not a very sumptuous meal, just "shootie," jam (usually turnip jam, I think), and tea. At last the great hour of departure comes, and I say good-bye to my comrades in the signallers' hut. By the way, they don't call it the "signallers' hut." These lads are "specialists" now, so must assume some dignity, consequently some wag has christened their sanctum "Utopia." These farewells over, we line up in the main parade ground, surrounded by our chums, who look upon this as a sort of red-letter day. The kindly old Major gives us a word or two of counsel, and we march off to the skirl of the pipes and the shouts of the men. Tommy knows no ceremony; on such occasions there are no valedictory addresses, no lamentations, just a shake of the hand, and a "so long, old sport," and off you go as happy as children at a fair. A short march through the snow brought us to the station, and here we were met by drafts of Seaforths and H.L.I. With us we had brought a big sack of rations for the journey; in fact it was so big that we were bringing ourselves to believe that the War Office agrees with Napoleon that an army marches on its stomach. It is said if you want to win a man's heart feed the brute, and in this every soldier concurs. As we embarked on the train the band rendered some popular bagpipe music, the soldiers themselves occasionally joining in a chorus of "hoohs." Then the train puffed out of the station, and we were away.

We had many amusing experiences in London, and the folks who saw us crawling up Southampton Row early on the Wednesday morning smiled quietly, but whether at our kilts or unwashed faces I cannot say. From Waterloo Station we went to London Bridge, and thence to a popular seaside resort on the Channel coast. A few minutes' walk took us from the train to the boat. The name had been partially obliterated. Each man wore a large cork lifebelt, in case of contingencies, and the wag of our draft hoped the Germans wouldn't torpedo the boat that day, as he thought the water would be too cold. The shrill siren sounds, the gangway is drawn, moorings slipped, and presently we were coursing through the foaming surf, further and further from the white, snow-clad cliffs of England. In the course of the journey the English soldiers made us fully cognisant of the fact that they were anxious to make friends with the "Scotties," and invariably opened conversation with the query, "Aren't your knees cold, Jock?" Whether Fahrenheit registers differently where knees are concerned, I don't know, and the phlegmatic kilties did not give much information.

We were not long in entering the well-appointed harbour, and one of the first objects I espied on the quay was a Gordon Highlander, standing there as if sent by Providence to welcome us. I am not going to weary you with an account of our landing. En route to our rest camp we repeatedly heard the inhabitants saying, "Ah, les Ecossais," that is, "Ah, the Scotch." Passing along a beautiful garden promenade, I noticed two little French girls with Gordon tartan dresses. One of the virtues of the French sentries is their extremely good humour, and they are very friendly towards our soldiers. We had not much time in this pretty town, for, having marched through the poorer quarters and up a stiff hill, we arrived at our rest camp. We spent the night under canvas, and got up early next morning. Soon we lined up, and descended on the town singing of something about a "silver lining," and some other masterpieces, which had a decidedly disturbing effect on that clear morning air. I think I hear the French folks saying the British soldier is "some" singer. Considering its associations, the railway station was a disappointment, as were also the trains. At some parts the little kiddies ran alongside asking for biscuits and "bully" beef. Trying to decipher the advertisements on the hoardings was a source of amusement, and much time was spent waving glengarries to factory lassies and others. All too soon it was time to leave the train, but, let me say, in the course of our short journey down country, we got some revelations, and no mistake: how I should like to "strafe" the censor!

We had now arrived at our base, another place that the home folks have very scanty knowledge of. Our base is a large camp of tents on a plateau a little inland from a fair-sized town. The occupants of the camp are termed "drafts" and "details." The former are men newly arrived from "Blighty," while the latter are odd men from all battalions, who have been sent down from the firing line unwell or wounded, and who have been treated locally, that is, in the military hospitals near by. These drafts and details are drilled here before being sent to the firing line. The training ground is a large natural amphitheatre, surrounded by small hills and sand dunes. The soldiers very pertinently call it "The Bull Ring." Oh! how they shiver at the mention of "The Bull Ring," and the instructors who frequent it. The thought of it will haunt some of us to the grave. I shall not dwell on it further than say it is a huge drill ground, where bodies of men are moved about like figures on a chess board. The troops march there and back with full pack, a journey which is only lightened by the cheery greetings of the wounded soldiers who occupy the hospital along the route, while the "sisters," too, bestow a happy smile on us. In the drill area, it is work, work, work all the time, except for half-an-hour, when we rest and listen to the only band here, and it goes without saying it is a pipe band. The Australians march to and fro to the accompaniment of one drum, and I think every man in their battalion abhors it, except, indeed, the drummer himself.

Our camp here is quite a good spot. There are numerous recreation huts, the most popular being the Y.M.C.A., the Soldiers' Christian Association, and the Catholic Club, while a buffet is much run upon. In these Tommy is cared for spiritually, mentally, and physically—there are Bible classes, concerts, and “tuck-ins.” The day before I left the Australians were down for a concert in the Y.M.C.A., and headed their bill, “Come and do the Kangaroo Hop.” Alas, like baby's chocolate, it's all too good to last. Having passed the drill tests and medical inspection, the men are fitted out for the front proper, and “packed up the line” to the trenches. I wonder what our forefathers, who fought in this country a century ago, would say about our kit. The up-to-date rifle, capable of firing fifteen rounds a minute; the gas and smoke helmets, the “tear shell” goggles, the sheep skins, rainproofs and waterproof sheets, field dressings, quinine, and numerous other things, would all be new to those warriors who went forth to battle with a musket, a bayonet, and a handful of oatmeal. And what would he say if he got a Russian bath while on active service? Soon, however, we must go “up the line” to fight for the freedom these same men handed down to us. Early on a dewy morning the orderly-sergeants call us, and we sling our packs on our backs, and march to the station. These packs are very heavy, and seem to gain weight at every mile of a march. Fortunately the walk to the station was not very far, and we made our way there singing and laughing, and anxious to meet “Les Allemands,” better known as the Huns.

When next I write you I shall tell you something of my impressions of the firing line.
